Senate Repeals Gulf of Tonkin Measure, 81-10

By Philip Carter

WASHINGTON, June 24 (WP1.-The Senate renounced the Gulf of Tonkin resolution today by a vote of 81-10.

The vote marked the first legislative test of the resolution of support for presidential prosecution of the Vietnam war since the measure's overwhelming passage by both houses of Congress on Aug. 7, 1964

But today's action offered no clear signal of present sentiment in the Senate about President Nixon's conduct of the conflict in Indochina. Some war critics hailed the repeal vote as a major step toward restoring the war powers in Con-gress and bringing an end to the Asian conflict. Republicans, who voted for repeal with White House support, contended on the other hand that their action would neither diminish presidential au-thority as commander in chief of the nation's armed forces, nor affect his conduct of the war.

And Sen. J. William Fulbright,

D., Ark., who served as floor manhas since regretted it, paradoxically voted against repeal. The repeal WASHINGTON, June 24.—Viccissue was forced, he sharply con-President Spiro T. Soviet's Middle East MASTER PLAN

An Israeli Delegation is currently in Washington, to discover just what President Nixnn meant, when he promised a regular flow of replacement aircraft for Israel to Prime Minister Golda Meir. Na dnuht the Israelis are also seeking tn discover what Secretary of State William Rogers meant, when he publicly stated that Israel's "superiority" in the air would be maintained with U.S. help.

What the Israelis will mainly discover -what they have perhaps discovered already-is the quagnire of American policy-making that the dreadful Middle Eastern crisis has produced. What will emerge from the quagmire can already be predicted with some confidence.

DEADLY REALISM

Before the Six-Day Wor, the Egyptians had 300 tanks and the Syrions had 350. Today, the Saviets have provided Egypt with 1,600 tonks, and the Syrians with 1,000. Befare the Six-Day War, again, the Egyptians had 400 pieces of heavy artillery, and the Syrians 200. Taday, the Soviets have pravided the Egyptians with 1,600 heavy artillery pieces, and the Syrians with 1,000.

The contrast in planes is even more stortling. The Egyptian air farce has been increosed fram 100 plones in 1967 to 600 today, including 170 MIG-21s and 150 Sukhay bombers in the supersonic category. The Syrian air force has been camparobly increased, from 55 aircraft in 1967 to 260 today.

The 100 MIG-21s of the most advanced model, which the Soviet pilots are flying in Egypt, are additional to the figures given above for the Egyptian air force. Withaut caunting the planes given the Egyptians and Syrians, just those 100 MIGs being flown by Soviet pilots considerably autnumber the Israeli air farce's present stack of supersonic Phantoms and Mirages.

The Soviet pilots and SAM-3s have already put President Nasser's war of attrition back into high gear. How serious this is may be hard for North Americans to understand. For instance, we read of 30 Israeli soldiers lost, the other day, in a single fight on the Suez front, and no one was concerned. But for little Israel, that loss was exactly what a loss of over 2,800 Americans would be to the U.S.

BRAZEN SOVIET PLOT

No one in his senses can read the foregoing figures without reaching a grim conclusing. The Soviet arms shipments were obviously planned, fram the first, to give the Arab elient-states enough sheer weight of metal to erush Israel. That is the only possible interpretation. And this in turn explains Gamol Abdel Nasser's declaration of a "war of attrition" last year.

In contrast, the Israelis will be offered Phantom and Skyhawk planes on a strict replacement" basis, to be provided only when necessary to maintain their tiny existing stock of supersonic Phantoms and Mirages, plus the Skyhawks they now have. Meanwhile, no doubt, diplomatic exercises will be attempted, aimed to find an agreed solution to the crisis which is symbolized by the Russian pilnts in Egypt.

ANOTHER MUNICH?

In these diplomatic exercises, it is far from unlikely that an attempt will be made to deal with Israel as the British dealt with the wretched Czechoslovaks before and after Munich in 1938. The fact is that all the Nixon administration's efforts to solve the Middle Eastern. problem by diplomacy have failed aiready; and the failure is frankly admitted.

When this sort of thing happens. there is always, the Munich-time temptation - the temptation to urge the small and threatened nation to sacrifice its own security, in the hope that the convenience of the big powers will be served thereby. It is hard to see what else to expect.

TRUTHS WE FACE

The truth is that the recent talk about the Soviet role in Egypt between Secretary of State Rogers and Soviet Ambassador Anatoli Dobrynin, was about on a par with the famous Kennedy-Gromyko conversation of 1962. This was the talk in which the Soviet fareign minister flatly lied to the late President about the Soviet missiles in Cuba.

Meanwhile, the central danger is the quagmire in the U.S. government, on which Israel must depend for Israel's simple survival. In certain quarters in the Defense Department, although not in the uniformed armed services, hostility to Israel comes close to being blatant.

In most of the State Department, Mr. Micawber's hope that "something will turn up," is the characteristic note. Even in the official interpretations of Soviet intentions in the Middle East, wishfulness is all too frequent. The one hope that the sinister probable truth will be squarely faced, lies in the President himself; and he stands quite alone.

The fact is that nothing will be gained, far the long pull, by the kind of Americoo fudging that seems to be in praspect. Trauble for U.S. ail concession-halders in the Arab cauntries being - but only for the time being. But we sholl still be faced with the grim question, whether to stond passively by while the Israelis are beateo tatheir knees, or Israel is octuolly de-

REALITY OF TWO POLICIES

There are in reality only two rational pnlicies to adopt in this Middle Eastern crisis. One policy is based on "reasons of state," which the French have announced. In a smaller way, even the British have been following this line.

Thus Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart some time agn told Mrs. Meir, straight out, that Britain could not sell Israel new tanks, but must still sell tanks to Libya. because of the British oil interest in Libya. If the U.S. ever follows that line, Israel will be automatically doomed. Thus this policy is a bit too bold, thank the eternal God, for the dwellers in our policy-making quagmire.

As to the other rational policy, it is for the U.S. to bet its bottom dollar on the only remaining American assets in the Middle East, which are the shining courage and superb skill of the Israelis. That will mean trouble with the "moderate" Arabs, of course. But if Israel is crushed by Egypt and Syria, with active Soviet help, both the "moderate" Arobs and the Western oil concessions will vanish, almost overnight. All but Soviet power will then be excluded from the Middle East. So trouble now, deep as it would probably be, is still prefer-able to the troublo that lies further down the road.

IN FREE WORLD'S INTEREST

Backing Israel means far more than a meager promised flow of replacement aircraft. Backing Israel means, for instance providing Israel with American supersonic jets in really substantial numbers, not just to replace lost Phantoms, but to replace the wholly obsolete Voutours, Mysteres and Ouragans that make up the bulk of the Israeli air force.

Backing Israel in this manner will have a supreme advantage, too. It may farce the Kremlin, belatedly, to recolculate the risks of the Soviet venture in the Middle East. And unless thoso risks are recalculated soon, a most terrible disaster is certoin in the end. @ Los Angeles Times

A major factor behind the American attempt to produce a plan more acceptable to the Arabs than previous proposals is the presence of Soviet missile troops and pilots in Egypt, which greatly increase the danger of the Arab-Israeli conflict touching off a wider war.

The flood of Soviet men and weapons into Egypt since the beginning of this year has checked the punishing Israeli air strikes into Egypt and given the Egyptians a secure base area from which to build up their strength along the canal, where their positions are being daily pounded by Israeli air-craft.

TV Statement Egypt has stated it would accept a limited cease-fire with Israel, hnt only if tied to complete Israeli withdrawal from occupied Arab territories.

President Nasser raised this possibility in a recent American television interview. A government spokesman later reiterated that a cease-fire with strings could be accepted for a specified period, while the UN Security Council made arrangements for Israeli

As these attacks through established legal channels indicate, WEAL stands well to the right in the burgeoning spectrum of women's liberation. She was a visiting lecturer this past year at the University of Maryland and suspects she has not been rehired because of her WEAL activities. At the same time, her "Uppity Women Unite" button testifies to her sense of humor.

The complaints against colleges and universities that Dr. Sandler has been firing off to the Labor Department since the end of January come under an executive order signed by former President Lyndon B. Johnson that forbids discrimination of all sorts by government contractors. WEAL started with a shotgun complaint against all institutions and has since filed more specific charges against hias at scores of individual campuses.

So far, according to a spokes-man for the HEW Office of Civil Rights, which is in charge of conducting compliance reviews. only one new investigation has been launched in direct response to WEAL's charges—at the University of Maryland, HEW investigators are looking into WEAL's sex-bias charges at Hervard and at Manhattan Community College in New York City as part of broader reviews.

HEW Reply

The Labor Department announced on June 9 a set of guidelines to assure that federal contractors of all types give women a fair shake. Dr. Sandler called the guidelines "nice but not far enough." WEAL is prodding the administration to go a step further by adopting an affirmative action plan comparable to the "Philadelphia plan," which sets hiring goals for minority workers on government-contrect construction projects. Louis Harris Poll Shows Opinion In U.S. Is Divided Over Abortion

NEW YORK.—In the face of sweeping changes in the abortion laws of two states, New York and Hawaii, and mounting pressure from women's liberation groups to change the law elsewhere, the United States remains deeply divided on the abortion

On an overall basis, about 50 percent of the country appears to be against abortion as against 40 percent in favor, according to a poll by the Lonis Harris organization. But, when the question was rephrased to encompass legal abortion as an alternative "until good, safe birth control methods can be found." 49 percent of the public favored legalizing abortion, with 39 percent against.

Pollster Harris points out that these figures do not reflect uncertainty in public opinion so much as they reveal a deep cleavage in attitudes among different sections of the United States, as well as emotionally charged reactions among different popula-

Lion groups.

A national cross-section of 1520 households was recently asked:

"Some states now have or are about to have new state abortion laws that permit a woman to have her pregnancy aborted for any reason, up to a certain month of pregnancy. In general, do you favor such laws permitting abortion for almost any reason or do you oppose them?

English Pianist Wins Tchaikovsky Prize

MOSCOW, June 24 (AP) .--British piano professor John Lill shared first place with a Soviet contender last night in the prestigious Tchaikovsky music performance competition.

The 23-man jury chaired by pianist Emil Gilels awarded duplicate prizes to Mr. Lill and Vladimir Krainev, 26. Both will receive the full 2,500 rubles ($2,750) in prize money.

However, anyone who can swallow oysters and clams really shouldn't balk at uncooked tuna, which is absolutely delicious.

A Steak House For a taste of the East with a link to home, you might try the Ashtya Steak House in Kyoto. The steaks are grilled before you and the meat is the world-famous Omi beef from the best in beer-fed, hand-massaged

The steaks are superb. But the Ashiya is more than just an attractive restaurant. It is an example of humanism at work. The eight boys who work there are all the sons of unmarried Japanese women and American GIs. As youngsters, they grew up rejected by Japanese society. Children of these liaisons received no support from the country of their fathers either. An American living in Japan, Robert Strickland, sought some of them out and made them active participants in his restaurant to give them a sense of family. Now they all have stock in the Ashiya. A former GI himself, Mr.

Ralph Waldo Emerson.

Strickland returned to Japan in the late 50s as a student. He learned the language, developed a keen interest in Japanese humor, and apprenticed himself for two and a half years to the comedian Ashiya Gannosuke. During those years he appeared on stage, on television, and also acted as chauffeur, valet and tea boy. He went on to become The Japanese mainly a master of ceremonies in a eat only luxury fishes raw. There must be a moral in this. Kyoto nightclub and a cook in a Chinese restaurant.

In 1963, he founded the Continental Traffwaye bus system in Japan, a company of which he is president. Mr. Strickland, who several years ago married a Jepanese girl, is today a successful businessman. His company also acts as general agent for Hollday Inns of America, Thomas Cook and Sons, Avianca, and Continental Trailways,

A Dream

The Ashiya was a dream he had when he was a master of ceremonies. "From the time I came to Kyoto, almost penniless,

I wanted something to make me a permanent part of the city. It seemed that in view of my background, a restaurant that would offer a pure, authentic old-Kyoto atmosphere to foreign visitors as well as Japanese would be a worthwhile contribution to Kyoto. I was determined I would share the place with those who believed in my project and helped me make it

"My wife operates the Ashiva as I'm in Tokyo during the week, and I return to Kyoto on weekends. Working at the Ashiya on Saturday and Sunday is my rest and relaxation." On the second floor of the restaurant is a gallery to give international and local artists working and studying under the great Japanese masters a place to have their works shown and appreciated.

Gallery and steak house Ashiya ore open from 5:30 to 11:30 p.m., closed Mondays. Dinners begin of 2,200 yen (approximate-ly $5.50). Reservations advisable.

Dudman-III: 'Sadness' Fires Up a Soldier

(Continued from Page 1) and the phosphorus flares from allied fire bases came closer. Long lines of guerrilla troops in a variety of uniforms passed us carrying all kinds of weapons, including an enormous rifle or rocket-launcher that I had never seen before. Many of the soldiers were on crutches-I counted ten in a row. Sometimes two of the men carried a pole between them with a suspended hammock containing a fighter who was wounded too badly to walk. We were ordered to sit at the side of the read with our battk serongs pulled over our heads. Several times when a soldier caught a glimpse of our faces and saw we were Westerners, he would pull one of his companions saide and point excitedly as if to say, "See, I told you

Back on Road

Those who passed carried word of our difficulty to the next village. Before long. 20 young Cambodian men arrived. By sheer manpower they shoved our car-back up on the road. When the Rover was freed, everyone clapped in the peculiar manner they have, hands above their head.

They stayed with us for a mile or so along the hazardous dike road that ran hetween rice paddles two feet deep in water. Whenever we came to another broken culvert where the vehicle could have slipped off again, they grabbed up chunks of mud brush from the paddies and literally rebuilt the road.

The guerrillas pointed out to us that the incident showed they were getting cooperation from the villagers. They said the young men had come out voluntarily.

We eventually left this ter-rible rice-paddy road and came to another road, only to he stopped at a crossroad. Without explanation, we were ordered out of the Land Rover—that was the last we saw of it—and began marching single file down a side road. We had hiked for about seven miles when it bccame apparent something was wrong. We were told to wait a shed-like shelter with a thatched roof. We were so tired that Mike lay down on the ground and Beth leaned against a tree, while I stretch-ed out on a bench. At dawn we set off to walk for another hour. We went from house to house, waiting outside each while one of the guerrillas went inside to see if we could stay there. At each place the answer was no. Finally we were taken in at a little

This was an unusual ordeal. The next morning Anh Tu, the mild-mannered guard who looked after our personal needs, gave us the explanation:
"The people here didn't know

At one little house where we spent a week. we began to develop a kind of friendship with the guerrillas. The turning point came one night when Anh Hai and a soldier whom we called Yogi-because he resembled Yogi Bear of the comics-began clowning. With Yogi singing to weird Cambodian music, Anh Hai and Anh Tu began prancing around the room in a kind of modern dance. Later, to the amusement of the others, Yogi wrapped himself in a blanket and piled three pillows on his head so that he looked vaguely like a Buddhist monk. In a pointed ridicule, this atheist spent 20 minutes in a hilarious recitation of a Buddhist chant. A few nights later we provided the entertainment. We heard their radio playing a Cam-bodian song containing animal sounds. It almost sounded like "Old MacDonald Had a Farm." So after the music ended we sang it for them. I think they liked it, because several days later Anh Tu suddenly asked, Would you sing that song about the animals again?" This week we saw a quiet period in which the guerrillas replenished their packs, refilling the salami-shaped cotton sacks of rice that they carry over their shoulders and cleaning their rifles. They cut each other's hair carefully and shaved their sparse beards, using a kind of nail clipper attached by a chain to their eigerette lighters. One of them gave Mike a very good haircut. They were very clean. They were thin shirts and pants of nylon or some other synthetic material which were dry an hour after washing. They wore dark clothing at night for going outside. But most of them had crisp white sport shirts to wear around the house.

Penned Too Long Our guards hegin to think that we were geiting listless by being penned up too much. So they begin taking us out to exercise in a wood about half a mile away. On the first of these outings we were a bit bored and passed the time playing Cambodian tic-tac-toe with Yogi. The game has an un-limited number of squares and requires five X's in a row instead of only three to win. We used a mat of woven pain leaves as the playing surface. When this ran out, Mike and I began carving chessmen from tree branches, using my pocket knife. It was a two-day project, and the guerrilles watched us with great interest. Beth carved the pawns. We turned out a very good little chess set. We took the bark off one set, and that hecame the white side while the others served as the Anh Hai watched Mike and me play the first game and caught on immediately. He al-ready was familiar with ele-phant chess, a somewhat similar Oriental game. Anh Tu joined him to play a game against Mike, with the two guerrillas arguing over the moves to make. They lost, but when it was over, Anh Hai offered a typically obscure Oriental remark-"We can't lose yet because we have never won from you. We are just like Nixon in Southeast Asia."

The two guerrillas were soon playing pretty good chess. They delayed only a few seconds be-tween moves. They would size up a situation instantly. they lost a match, they didn't seem to mind. They would fight with what was left. When Anh Hai finished one particu-larly hard game, we asked him if he wanted to play another.

"No," he replied. "Fight, fight-sleep, sleep." He unroll-a nap.

It later turned out that the chess set we had carved was the only thing that the guerrillas would accept from us as a parting gift when we were

We had given them a chess But it soon turned out that they would risk their lives

It happened on June 9. We squatted around the rice pot for a late breakfast.

Copter Attack The tedium broke with a snap when we heard some United States helicopters coming closer than they had all month. We pulled down some shirts and underwear we had hung out to dry and with our knees under our chins we hunched back in a little thatched shack where we would go to get out of the rain. Yogi crouehed with his carhine next to a tree. Anh Ba grabbed his M-16, warning us to stay out of sight and, whatever happened, not to run. He took off along a trail through the woods. Helicopters began flying low They sounded right overhead, although we could not see them through the canopy of branches and vines. We heard one burst from a machine gun-probably "reconnaissance by fire.

At a lull in the attack Yogi told us to scramble beneath the stilted shack. We thought the five 50-kilogram pound) sacks of rice on the floor above would stop machinegun bullets, but they would have heen no protection against rockets. The raid lasted about

45 minutes as the planes circled repeatedly and dived almost at

When the choppers left we were ordered to leave the hut, for it was too good a target. Yogi led us along tangled paths a quarter of a mile to a fallback hideaway under a hushy

Finally Anh Ba returned and we learned what a close call we had had. He scratched a map in the dirt and showed where he had hidden in the hut. A circle marked where one of the five helicopters, just 50 yards away, had been swcoping down looking for a target. It was so low—only about 150 feet above the ground—that, Anh Ba said, the rotor wash swayed the trees and could easily have disclosed the location of our hut.

He showed how he had skirted the area to a point on the opposite side of the attack zone. He said he showed himself and fired three shots at the lowest helicopter to draw its attention

"This is an inferior weapon," he remarked. "I could have hit it if I had been using an AK-47." He said the Chinese repeating rifle could bring down a plane from an altitude of 500 meters (1,600 feet). He said he had shot down six U.S. planes during the course of the war, including a helicopter just a few days before we were captured and put in his charge. The raid had brought us all closer together. When all was quiet we returned to our house. As we drank tea, Anh Be told us, "The worst thing you could have done would have been to run into the open and show yourselves to the Americans. I carry this pistol on my hip, and if that had happened, I would have had to shoot you But no matter what happened I would not have shot you, because I know you would not do that. I don't say very much, but I have been observing you carefully. I know that you are good people."

Testing the Vote Bill

President Nixon's statement that he would have vetoed the 18-year-old-vote bill if it had stood alone. The President relterated his strong belief that the measure is unconstitutional and he does not expect it to survive the court test which he ordered the attorney general to bring as soon as poswible. He signed the bill in order to save its other provisions—extension of the Voting Rights Act of 1965 and a section allowing all citizens to vote in presidential elections without regard for state residency requirements.

In our view this was the best course he could have taken to resolve his dilemma. If the youth-suffrage rider exceeds the authority of Congress, the Supreme Court can invalidate it. The President could not have taken upon himself the responsibility for making this decision without risk of heing gravely misunderstood by the two groups most deeply involved in the current unrest; the Negroes who look upon the Voting Rights Act as the most vital element in their enfranchisement and the youths who are seeking a part in the national decisionmaking process. Since the non-controversial parts of the bill involve the voting rights of about six million citizens nearly one million blacks who have been registered under federal auspices or protection in the last five years and an estimated five million who in the past have lost their votes for president because of arbitrary state residency requirements—a veto could not have been justified for the sake of shielding the Supreme Court from what may prove an embarrassing task.

It is not yet clear what steps the attorney general will take to expedite the constitutional test in the courts, but there is a recent precedent for going directly to the Supreme Court. After Congress passed the original ity pact with Washington.

A reasonable inference can be drawn from Voting Rights Act, Sooth Carolina sought an injunction in the Supreme Court against the enforcement of its provisions by the attorney general. The court not only accepted original jurisdiction in the case; it also recognized the desire of the state to obtain a ruling before its 1966 primary election and therefore dispensed with the appointment of a special master and expedited its own hearing. All the states were asked to participate as friends of the court.

The Supreme Court has an entirely logical aversion to deciding abstract issues and to rendering declaratory judgments or advisory opinions. Its basic business is judicial, the decision of actual cases and controversies. In this instance, however, one or more of the states is certain to challenge the right of Congress to fix the age for voting, and the Supreme Court is the only body which can resolve that very real Issue. There is no basic controversy over facts which will require a lower-court trial in the usual sense. The basic goestion is what the Constitution

If the Supreme Court is willing to follow its precedent, in South Carolina vs. Katzenbach, there should be no difficulty in obtaining a promp test of the statute. No doubt all the states will join in the appeal for prompt action since none of them can hold even a school-board or bond-issue election without possible confusion over the outcome until the issue is resolved. Meanwhile. Congress would do well to heed the President's advice to proceed with the approval of a constitutional amendment in any event. The vital queetlon of enfranchising 11 million young citizens should not be left hanging precariously on the chance that the Supreme Court will say that the Constitution does not mean what it has always been assumed to mean in the past.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass.—The end of But in the atmosphere of mass one looks back on a year at vard and other universities now Harvard, the mind focuses, not on the truths glimpsed, but on the questions left unanswered.

Start with the university itself. What can one say about its condition and its prospects? It was a year of turmoil at Harvard, from the Weathermen's raid on the Center for International Affairs that marked its beginning, to the tenants' protest that marred the com-mencement finale. But beneath the surface a visitor sensed certain healing forces at work. The students and teachers joined in serious discussion of curriculum reform. With Cambodia, there came a surprisingly broad agreement, not only on a major question of national policy, but on the form of protest and political action that was and was not appropriate for the university and its members.

Sometime next year Harvard will choose a new president to succeed the embattled Nathan Pusey and the change of command will provide an opportunity to repair some of the wounds of recent years.

Fragile Institution

One wonders, however, if the campus combatants, the students and faculty members who are so great in condemning each other, realize just how fragile an institution the university is. It is a small relic of medieval times, despite its inflated capital needs and corporate structure. It is an artificial being, where scholarship survives by mutual sufferance and self-restraint.

The essential, if unwritten, compact underlying the university is the agreement by all concerned, be they donors or deans or student leaders, to retrain from using their influence in certain vital areas. The university exists only so long as no one fences off the territory on which a scholar's mind may roam, or limits what is sought or taught. One wonders how long that tolerance will be practiced. One wonders, too, about the habit of skepticism within the university, the scholar's willingness to examine and reexamine his own views.

How long can it survive the penchant for polemics? There are many heartening examples of its durability in its performance of faculty members like Edward Banfield, the iconoclastic urbanologist who lets his students learn by inviting critics of every

The act of defining such a truth all on his own, when he must operate entirety without comprehension of the concepts of "freedom" and "right," even taking into consideratotal working knowledge of the term "aggression," can have been no mean feat.

The fact that he has quoted this as a defense of Russia in Cambodia (!), while showing exactly how much in command he thinks he is of the world's opinion, nevertheless does not change the fact of whose rights he truly defines. May his contradiction come home to roost with a vengeance.

Whose Body?

The American Civil Liberties Union recommends that "every individual has a right to use his own body as he will, and this right includes the use of drugs," even harmful ones (IHT, June 9). Much as I have always respected the ACLU, this attitude is either ignorant or naive. The body belongs to the species as well as to the individual. Drugs taken by

It is also socially false, for those who injure themselves or their children through drug usage or addiction are forcing their physical maintenance upon their families or their society. However, the burden of a fair settlement of this dispute cannot rest solely on the United States. While complaining bitterly about the restrictions of others, the Japanese maintain tight restrictions against foreign trade and investment. Their failure to ease these restrictions plays into the hande of protectionists in this country and in others.

The breakdown of these textile negotiations-perhaps only temporary-can have disastrons consequences. Not only does it endanger U.S.-Japanese relations and exacerbate Japanese nationalism but it could set this country on a route to protectionism that would spread internationally. It will take wisdom and skill on the part of both governments to avert such a disaster.

Today's Men

The people have not voted for a return to yesterday's men. They want a newstyle Conservative government as different from the historic Tory image as Mr. Heath himself, the son of a working man, is different from the traditional Tory leader. -From The Sun (London).

Edward Heath has all the qualities to become a great prime minister, but much depends on how fortune treats him. The problems which he will have to face in both foreign and domestic affairs are large and difficult.

One aspect of Britain's foreign policy will certainly be in rapport with Europe. The European outlook of [former Prime Minister Harold] Wilson was not without hypocritical nuances. That of Heath is sincere and far-sighted. -From Corriera Della Sera (Milan).

The Election Without Voters By James Reston

day in New York is that the bars are closed. Maybe it's the Puritan's revenge. The only thing York with most people grumbling about the "political system" and less than a third of the eligible voters even going to the polls.

Something is obviously missing between the American people and their government. You can hardly pick up a newspaper or time in people or the people have failed the system.

Here, for example, is John Gardner, chairman of the Urban ing in St. Louis this week that (1) 65 percent of eligible American voters don't vote regularly; (2) half of them can't name their coogressmen: and 65 percent can't name both of their senators; (3) 86 percent are not able to identify anything their congressman has done and 96 percent can't identify any policy their congressmen stands for.

And this is not all. The argument over the corruption of money Agnew attacks Averell Harriman, Bill Pulbright, Sen. Kennedy and other peace advocates as if they were traitors to their country, and a meat house, running wild on his tween the university critics of the even bothered to go to the boils.

NEW YORK.—About the only own beyond the control of the war and the construction workers, way you can tell it's election President. Obviously there is something wrong with these stereotypes. The system is not perfect, but it is not being used. Money is corruptmg it, but the television networks are beginning to try, very slowly, to restore a balance between the President and the opposition. It is ridiculous for Agnew to attack men like Harriman and Cy Vance as if they longed for the defeat and bumiliation of America in Indochina, but it is also silly to assume that the Vice-President is a vicious man acting on his own.

Feeling of Futility

He is, in fact, a highly intelligent man playing the political role that has been assigned to him. He is the point of the Republican spear -the aggressive, provocative, partisan fund-raiser-and the more exciting he is one weekend, the more combative he must be the next. He is quite capable of playing a unifying role as one of the only two men elected by all the American people, but he has been assigned—one can only assume by the President-a partisan and divisive role.

In short, maybe there really is something wrong with the American political system. The evidence in politics goes on. Vice-President is all around us. We see it in the low vote in the New York election, the "what's-the-use" attitude of the stay-at-homes. We see it in the Vice-President is attacked in candidates against poor candidates. politics in this city and seldom turn as if he were a blind dog in It is apparent in the battles be-between the peace symbols and the flag wavers.

Nothing illustrates this tragic conflict more than the mood of the young and old moderates in the Congress or even on the White House staff. They feel trapped between the extremists of the right and left, who get all the headlines, and the low vote in New York this week indicates that the voters feel this same sense of John Gardner's remedy for this

New York election, but more political action by the people. Leave it to the politicians, he says, and we are lost. "The danger lies," he says, "in a downward spiral-diminishing is not public indifference to the confidence on the part of the individual that he can possibly affect the system, therefore, less action on his part; therefore, necessarily more paternalism on the part of the system; consequently, even less initiative on the part of the individual, and so on. At the bottom of that downward spiral will lie the wreckage and the memory of a free society."

His argument is that the people are more likely to liberate the politicians from their political games then that the politicians will liberate the people. But there is not much evidence here in New York that the people get the point. Seldom in recent years has there the cynical use of money by rich been so much grumbling about

Short-term Eurodollar rates have been creeping higher over the past few days. Some dealers also feit the Fed's move might finally cause a rise reflecting a switching of funds back into the United Statess.

WASHINGTON (NYT).—Administration sources W have conceded that a plan to rescue the Penn Central with $200 million in federally guaranteed loans was abruptly abandoned when the White House decided that its political risks

In addition the sources disclosed the Defense Department—which announced the loan guaran-tes on June 10 and then withdrew the offer last Friday was never enthusiastic about the idea and ended up opposing it.

Somewhat rucfully, White House sources also said that the man who did the most damage to the original plan was Rep. Wright Patman, D., Texas, who ergues that the rescue operation would have set "unfortunate precedents" and that taxpayers should not be asked to put up "endiess sums" to correct management's mistakes. The giant railroad has been granted a ples for reorganization under the bankruptcy laws. In interviews, some of President Nixon's associates agree that Mr. Patman is right. In addition, they said two other factors persuaded the White House to cancel the arrangement. One was that the realization that $200 million would not be enough to save the Penn Central. This was a fact that the new chairman of the railroad, Paul A. Gorman, had himself made clear to Rep Paiman on Saturday, the day after the Defense Department announced termination of the rescua plan.

"It became increasingly clear to us," one source said, "that the railroad would need at least half a billion to do the job."

The administration had attempted to make such long-term funds available, promising legislation that would give the Transportation Department authority to guarantee up to $750 million in aid to financially troubled railroads over and above the "emergency" $200 million

In the middle of last week, however, as ad-ministration sources reconstruct events, the White House began to detect growing opposition on Capitol Rill to the long-term plan without which, they felt, the $200 million in emergency funds would soon be placed in jeopardy.

If the $200 million were lost, the White House reasoned, Mr. Nixon would be accused of squandering the taxpayers' money to rescue a badly managed $7 billion corporation, and he would not have been able to do much about it. This sudden realization was the second—and probably the most important—factor behind the White House decision to cancel the arrangement. Administration officials conceded that the decision was also influenced by fears that congressional hearings might have brought to light close ties between the administration and the Penn Central. But they denied heatedly that such ties had influenced in any way the original decision to undertake the rescue operation.

Among the most prominent of these ties were

Mr. Nixon's old law firm of Mudge, Rose,

Guthrie & Alexander had been retained to help the road over its period of financial difficulty. Investors Diversified Services—which Mr. Nixon once served as a director—controlled, as of early this year, several hundred thousand shares of the railroad's parent company.

 Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust Co. of Chicago, once headed by David M. Kennedy (now Treasury secretary), was listed on Dec. 31, 1968, as holding 305,600 shares of Penn Central stock and roughly $26 million in shortterm obligations.

 Walter H. Annenherg, the Nixon-appointed Ambassador to Britain, held 189,000 shares at the time of his resignation from the railroad's board of directors in 1969.

Far more influential than any of these factors, the administration insists, was the fear that the collapse of the Penn Central would lead other railroads into trouble and have a seriously adverse effect on financial markets, particularly the bond

The original rescue agreement was worked out June 9 in the office of Sen. Hugh Scott, R., Penn. who had been deeply troubled by the impact on unemployment in his state if the Penn Central collapsed. Participants in the meeting included Treasury, Transportation and Defense Department officials, and congressional leaders.

But Rep. Patman and several members of the House Banking and Currency Committee soon began to worry about the implications of the deal and ordered a quiet staff survey of the project. Telegrams went to the Justice Department questioning the legality of using the Defense Production Act-originally designed to provide small amounts of money to subsidize start up costs of small defense contractors—as the authorizing rehicle for the $200 million guarantee. Late last week Rep. Patman pressed his case against the plan with David Packard, Under Secretary of Defense.

Mr. Packard nominally supported the plan but Rep. Petman sensed, without much enthuslasm. One reason was that the Navy-which had been asked to provide the funds-was none too happy at the prospect of weakening its own budget. And in the Defense Department generally there was growing concern that if the $200 millism plan went through, troubled defense con-tractors—Lockheed, for example—would soon be sitting on the Pentagon's doprstep asking for emergency relief.

"Politically," one White House source said today, "we were lucky. This might have turned out to be a disaster for us, and if we had known then what we know now Jabout the extent of congressional opposition! we might never have offered the $300 million. But we've got to start thinking seriously about the impact this economy and the war is having on the financial markets and on vulnerable companies, and we've got to think of an impartial, fair way of helping out."

MAIN OFFICE 72 WALL STREET, NEW YORK Offices in Principal Cities

If you don't know your way around the U.S.A., make sure your bank does.

The high rate of return realized by many overseas companies that have invested in the U.S.—plus the technological and marketing experience they've gained-is enough to whet the appetite of any businessman.

But while the successes have been spectacular, so have the failures, when investors have moved in without adequate investment and financial knowledge.

How do you get this knowledge? Trust Northern.

The Northern Trust Bank, located at the hub of U.S. business, has provided comprehensive corporate financial services to companies from coast to coast for more than three quarters of a century. With this experience and our business contacts, we can help you determine which course is best suited to your individual objectives. If it is a joint venture or an acquisition, we can help you locate and evaluate candidates . . . perhaps from among the many corporations whose objectives have already been communi-cated to us. If another course is indicated, we can provide thorough financial consultation on the alternatives available.

For your business or personal investment management, our trust department—one of the largest in the country—can be of great assistance. If the U.S. figures in your company's future, why not ask about The Northern Trust at your own

Vice President in our Chicago office, or W. James Armstrong, Vice President at our London branch.

BRIDGE _____By Alan Truscott

STOCKHOLM, June 24.—The United States, represented by the Dallas Aces, and Nationalist China, represented by four very tired young men and one alter nate, will contest the final of the 1970 world bridge championship, in four 32-deal sessions to begin here this afternoon.

Nationalist China was in fine form today and won the first match by "international match" points, 57-46. This converts to 13-7 in victory points. In the last two matches of qualifying play yesterday, the Aces soured maximum points against Norway and Italy, while the Chinese held on to the crucial second position, tying Bra-zil 10-10, and defeating the Norwegian team 16-4. Final victory point standings were: United States 229; China 151; Brazil 136; Norway 118; and Italy 106. On the diagramed deal, from the 11th-round match between the United States and Nationalist China, a low level re-doubled contract was played for the first time in the week.

Patrick Huang, East for the Chinese, opened the bidding with a weak no-trump, and subsequently tried to show a maximum hand for his no-trump bid with a take-out double, when South's two-diamond overcall was passed around to him. South redoubled, and was dis-tinctly surprised when the auction ended at that point.

West led the spade queen.
East took his ace and returned the nine. South won with the king, drew trump in four rounds, and led his club to the king, in the faint hope that

West would duck holding the ace. When East won with the ace, South claimed 10 tricks, conceding a heart.

The score was 1,510, a figure more commonly achieved by hidding a successful grand slam in a major suit.

THRILLERS

Reviewed by Allen J. Hubin

THERE is something to be said for the series novel. which builds and expands upon the structures and images of the previous members of the series. There is a bit more to be said, however, for the nonseries novel a more exacting task, demanding the development, each time, of a new structure, new images, new milieu, fresh besic characterization That brings us to England's Michael Gilbert, a most creative author who has followusual consistency of quality. The most gratifying feature of Mr. Gilbert's latest, 'The Family Temb" (Harper & Row. $5.95), is that the story is eminently satisfying and there is not the slightest intimation that the author has rigged the. action. Englishman Robert Broke, following the death of his wife, has settled into the uneventful operation of an art gallery in Florence. Uneventful, that is, until the archaeo-logical excavations of the re-nowned scientist, Professor Bronzini, pique his listless cu-Bromaini, pique his listless curiosity. Bronzini is probing the extensive tombs of a 5th-century pirate, and valuable relies may be expected. Only a faint suspicion that all is not well engages Broke's mind, until a friend (a restorer of relies) is murdered. Then Broke becomes involved in both the becomes involved in both the murder investigation and the fascinating vagaries of Italian politics.

The thunderous success Mario Puzo's "The Godfathe will doubtless prompt a small avalanche of novels about the Mafia, but if they are all as striking as Charles Durbin's "Vandetta". (Coward-McCarm, $5.95) I shall not complain. This is an uncompromising account of a world in which there are no good guys by conven-tional standards, in which vio-lent death becomes almost commonpiace. Ansoldi, a young underworld denizen, takes a rap for a United States Mafia chief and is deported to Sicily. There he survives torture and imprisonment to be smuggled back to this country to carry out a special mission for the head of the New York family. To Las Vegas be goes, a pawn in internecine Matia warfare, a pawn that, as it happens, revolts. I have but one quarrel with Mr. Darbin: I could do without the distraction of footnoted translations of Sicilian

We have been well taught of spydom that it's cold out there, and to this premise "The Burning Fuse" (Harcourt, Brace & World, $5.95) by Jay Bernard adds little. Influenza depletes the ranks at British Intellisafe behind his London desk, is thrown into a mission to shepherd from Düsseldorf to Eugland an Eastern contact bearing vital information. The contact is Weiss, an unlovely ex-Nazi whom the Israelis also want, for different reasons. Carver's associates (a man and a wom an) are hardened profes and, as they wait in the twilight realm for the arrival of Weiss, we have an extended view of Carver's weakness and inexperience and indecision One could predict the outcome. If by some cruel oversight you haven't yet discovered Amanda Cross, you have three uncommon pleasures in store. 'In the Last Analysis' (1964), "The James Joyce Murder (1967) and now "Poetic Justice" (Knopf, $4.95). As the previous adventure of Prof. Kate Frans. ler was devoted to the works and letters of James Joyce here the themstic romance with the writings of poet W. H. Auden. Adden (coincidentally?) has a new volume just out from Random House ("City Without Walls and Other; Poems"). At any rate, the faculty of Kate's university is beset by two tribulations: ar internal power struggle and student dissent. And it is the former, strangely, that prove the more deadly. The myster, and detection here are almost incidental, however, to the daz zling display of elegance of language that Miss Cross is went to provide.

Coward-McCann, publishers of all the works of the late Char. lotte Armstrong, have instituted, a series of awards novels in her name, the first of which is D J. Olivy's "Never Ask a Police man" ($4.95). The Invention of TV

WASHINGTON. - The question came up at dinner the other night when people were discussing the Tory victory in Great Britain

"Why is it that the English were able to rule the world for almost 200 years while the United States has been unable to hold on for less than 25 years?" An Englishmen at the "It's quite sim-table replied: Bachwald ple, my dear chap. There was nn television." "Of course." someone else sald: "Television hadn't been invented then!" the contrary," the Englishman said, "it had been invented, but we were wise enough not to let the secret out. We all looked at him in amazement.

"Lord Cashmere of Rutland invented television in the year 1775," he said. "You can look it up in the secret archives of the British Museum. He was actually trying to invent the radlo, but rather than sound he gnt a picture nn his box instead." "What kind of B picture?" 2 skeptical guest asked. "A picture of a Redcoat in Boston flogging a colonial old man. "It's hard to believe," someone said.

Quite. In any case, Lord Cashmere knew be was onto something blg, so he took the box to King George III and demonstrated it to the court, which at the time was niceting on the Television Moors in Wales."

"So that's where the name came from," someone said. "It's all in the secret archives," the Englishman said. "The court was aghast at what they were seeing. There were large, burly Redcoats beating on the poor colonials, kicking women and children, setting fire to their homes and committing unbelievable atrocities in the villages."

"'Lord Cashmere,' the Arch-bishop of Canterbury said, 'what in God's name have you wrought?'

"Lord Cashmere said: 'I'm not sure, but it's possible that this invention could change all of mankind, Just think, my noble friends, that with this box our people would bear witness to the great news events of our time. No longer would we be dependent on ships for our news.'

"A cheer rent the air over Television Mcors. But then Gen. Sir Ronald Paley, the king's adviser on military Bffairs, spoke up. I do not wish to dash cold water on this box, but may I point out to you gentlemen that this invention could be the end of the Empire? Do you believe our young people would remain stlent after watching what we were doing in the colonies, or for that matter anywhere else? The country would be split asunder. The strength of England is that her people have no idea of what we're up to shroad.

"King George III spoke up. 'Sir Ronald is right. If we're to wage war in the colonies, we don't want the people at home to know what we're doing.

"Besides, if we have to pull out, I want to do it without the whole world watching us. Lord Cashmere, you have done your cnuntry an ill deed by this damnable contraption. I crder you at the pain of losing your head never to reveal your secret. We shall hury the box here on the moors, and Britannia will rule the waves."

The Englishman paused as we hung on to his every word.
"Then you kept the secret all these years," someon: said,

"That's correct," the Englishman said. "Thirty years ago an American anthropologist, digging around the moors, discovered the box. He turned it over to RCA, who without thinking of the consequences, started to manufacture them on a large scale. I imagine you can date the difficulty of the United States as B world power from the day Lord Cashmere's box was made available to the world,"

"What a great story," I said. "Do you mind if I write lt?"
"Go right ahead," the Englishman said. "It can't do Britain any harm anymore."

Venice Biennale Opens as Quietly As a Flower Show

By Michael Gibson

VENICE, June 24-Biennale officials and dignitaries from the verlous countries represented today inaugurated the exhibition in the sultry Venetian heat. There was no sign of political protest as they walked the maze of pavilions in placid tranquillity. They might have been opening a flower show that knew nothing of the uproar that shook the Biennale to its foundations in 1968.

The central pavilion, which is intended to give the keynote of the exhibition, was still closed and will not be ready for visitors until the end of the month. Postal and transport strikes are being blamed for the delay. The inner shell of the building is still being hammered into shape and only four or five works nut of some 150 listed in the catalogue have been installed.

Nearly all the national pavilions are spic-and-span, waiting for visitors. The French alone appear to be in a near chaotic flan. Their pavilion is designed to disrupt the visitor's normal sensory frame of reference. F)cors and walls slant every which way—but what looked good on paper seems less effective once it has been actually built. The slant is not insidious enough really to perplex the senses—and as for the rest of the exhibit. one can only guess at what is intended while carpenters work away under jittery. multi-colored neon tubes or finish off an awkward corner rather obviously labeled: "Pinched Space."

The closed Czech pavillon remains a mystery. Yesterday an ironic comment in white paint had been slathered across the walls and the main door: "Closed for 'technical' reasons-information at the Soviet psvilion."

Biennale officials say that there has been no word from the Czechs about any cancellation and that the exhibit-delayed, they imagine, by Italiau transport strikes-should be in Venice within the next few days. They have in fact been informed that it is on the road, and, they add, it is by no means exceptional for such an exhibition to arrive after the nfficial opening. In any event, this morning the inscription had been removed. Yesterday B German pedagogical group known as KEKS IB German acronym for art, education, cybernetics and society had taken upon itself the role of amiable protester by spreading large sheets of paper across the paths leading to the various psvilions and daubing: "Why do you come to the Biennale?" over them in red paint. Today that had all been removed, the paths were freshly raked and all was neat. KEKS is not here to rock the boat. The exhibition has given it a large room in which to work with children, as they have been doing in Germany, teaching them to handle any variety of materials without inhibitions.

The national exhibits, include representatives of a variety of styles, but there is a definite dominance of the formal. the novel and or the chic. This reflects one of the main problems confronting artists at the present moment; a new vision of reality is being required of them and they have so far been unable to formulate it. At present they are still ringing the ultimate changes that can be contrived out of the old vision. .

This implies an increasingly intellectual formalism, and an ever greater recourse to technology in an attempt Bt "renewal." Argentina, Canada, France, Germany, Japan, Britain, Holland, Switzerland, Uruguay and Venezuela have followed this line on the whole. Argentina's exhibit is in fact a sort of scientific display allowing visitors to view B swarm of bees Bt work Bnd various other animals (snails and fish) at close quarters. Venezuels is represented by op artist Cruz-Diez, Holland by a formal research group and Uruguay by a collective work consisting of a sort of maze of cube-shaped wooden frames set side. by side at random and bearing the cryptic title: "We Wish to Suggest a New Ethical Behavior in a New Society."

Biennale organizers intend the central pavilion to be an experimental and didactic show dealing with the relationship between art and technology. It is a pity that this part of the exhibition is not yet ready since it deals with an interesting aspect of contemporary artistic no-

There is an important sector of contemporary art that sees itself as a sort of glorified prolongation of experimental psychology. Because this branch of science has shown how we build our representations of time and space through our interpretation of sense data, some artists have been prompted to seek out forms that perplex the senses and cast some doubt upon our habitual constructions of reality.

"One part of contemporary research," says the introductory text of the catalogue, "has sought . . . to render thought and the mental processes visible." This intellectualization of art needs a critical analysis, and even if one does not agree with the view of art described above-as I do not-one may consider the present exhibition interesting as a summary of the problems facing the artist today rather then of his accomplishments. And it will be useful if it can effectively confront art and technology and define their separate domains.

PEOPLE:

"Right on!" screamed the mob or 10,000 as Mae West swept into the Criterion Theater Tuesday night for the premiere of her film "Myra Breckinridge." "Right on!" It was the biggest mob scene on Broadway for year: and Miss West, now in her 70s, wallowed in it.

It took 60 policemen, some brandishing billy clubs, plus six mounted patrolmen, to keep the mob from spatching at Miss West's fox-trimmed white satin gown and the diamond bracelets ringing her arms. The crowd held up traffic for blocks. The police barely managed to keep the West troops out of the theater lobby.

In comparison, Raquel Welch, who plays the title role in the film, got scant attention. Even Barbra Streisand at the premiere of "Hello, Dolly!" failed to create the excitement that Mae West brought back to Broadway, Tuesday night.

BORN: In Orune, Sardinla,

Maria Antonietta Campana, fifth child of Cecilia Campana, 32, and her outlaw hisband. Giuseppe. The father has been on Sardinia's most wanted list since he fled to the hills five years ago after a shepherd was killed. Authorities are offering $16,000 for information leading to his capture. Maria Antonietta is the third child born to the Campanas since Giuseppe took to the bush. Relatives set up a signal system to announce the births—rifle shots for boys and pistol shots for girls. But Tuesday no shots rang out for Maria Antonietta, leaving the police baffled on several scores: "We assume he was informed in some other way," an official said. "We also would like to know how and where he manages to see his wife."

ARRAIGNED: Actor-director Dennis Hopper of "Easy Rider," on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon in Taos, N.M., where Hopper recently purchased the home of Mahel Dodge Luhan State Police Chief Martin Vigil said Hopper and two others "were involved in some sort of fraces with some kids north of Taos. People there accused Hopper and the others nf pulling a gun on them." SUED: Actor-producer Peter Fonds of "Easy Rider" by Dennis Hopper, who claims he was not paid

Britain's youth is out of con-trol, what with young girls walking around London nearly naked and one thing and another, said Malawi President Hastings Kamuzn Banda at a press conference in Blantyre this week. "What I saw of London's youth. I wish I had not seen," Banda told newsmen after a monthlong visit to the British capital. "The young question everything and girls do not wear decent dresses any more," continued the president, who barned mini-skirts from Malawi some months ago. "Go to London if you will," he concluded, "look if you must, but do not bring such had manners hack with you."

Lady Bird (Mrs. Lyndon B.) Johnson, got a traffic ticket Tuesday after an auto accident in Austin, Texas, Police alleged that she failed to yield the right of way at a "yield" sign, posted at an intersection. She also got a citation for failing to display her driver's license. According to secretary in Mrs. Johnson's office, the former first lady had been "out shopping" when her car collided with another driven by Steve Gary Smart, 22, of Austin. No one was injured but Mrs. Johnson's car was damaged to the tune of $800 to $900, while Smart's car will need repairs estimated at $150. Patrolman Ken Muennink said he handled the case in a routine manner. Texas law requires that disposition of the charges must he made in court, within 12 days.
